

Index

Contents	XIII
Figures.....	XVII
Tables	XVIII
Abbreviations	XIX
1. Introduction.....	1
1.1. Motivation	1
1.2. Research objective and research questions	19
1.3. Focus and definitions	22
1.4. Thesis structure	27
2. Research design.....	31
2.1. Research concept.....	31
2.2. Research method	34
2.3. Sample selection.....	36
2.4. Data collection and data analysis	42
3. Practical relevance: innovation in emerging markets	45
3.1. China – a large fast-moving market	45
3.2. Emerging market innovation.....	49
3.3. Challenges for Western MNCs	54
3.4. Summary and managerial shortcomings	59
4. Theoretical relevance: firm internationalization and the MNC.....	61
4.1. Theories of firm internationalization and innovation diffusion	62
4.2. Management of the MNC.....	72
4.3. Global R&D	88
4.4. New product development	99
4.5. Initial reference framework	102
5. Empirical findings on reverse innovation from Western medical equipment manufacturers	111
5.1. Medical equipment industry.....	111
5.2. In-depth case studies	113

6. Conceptualizing reverse innovation	137
6.1. Revised reference framework	137
6.2. Cross-case analysis.....	142
6.3. Concept of reverse innovation	165
7. Theoretical implications	171
7.1. Categorization and definition of reverse innovation.....	171
7.2. Theory of innovation diffusion	174
7.3. Management of the MNC.....	178
7.4. Global R&D management.....	184
8. Managerial implications.....	187
8.1. Threefold innovation process.....	187
8.2. Implications on R&D management.....	196
8.3. Summary	198
9. Conclusion.....	201
9.1. Summary: theoretical implications	201
9.2. Summary: managerial implications.....	206
9.3. Limitations and future research.....	207
References.....	211
Appendix.....	233
Curriculum Vitae.....	241

Contents

Contents	XIII
Figures.....	XVII
Tables	XVIII
Abbreviations	XIX
1. Introduction	1
1.1. Motivation	1
1.1.1. Relevance of research subject	2
1.1.2. Limitations in current theory and research	5
1.2. Research objective and research questions	19
1.3. Focus and definitions	22
1.3.1. China as a research setting	22
1.3.2. Emerging market innovation.....	23
1.3.3. Reverse innovation.....	24
1.3.4. Western multinational corporation	25
1.4. Thesis structure	27
2. Research design	31
2.1. Research concept.....	31
2.2. Research method	34
2.3. Sample selection.....	36
2.3.1. Industry selection	36
2.3.2. Company selection.....	39
2.4. Data collection and data analysis	42
2.4.1. Data collection	42
2.4.2. Data analysis	43
3. Practical relevance: innovation in emerging markets	45
3.1. China – a large fast-moving market	45
3.1.1. Market liberalization and market growth.....	45
3.1.2. China's dual market structure	46
3.1.3. A new emerging middle class in China	47
3.1.4. New market needs for a new middle class.....	48

3.2. Emerging market innovation	49
3.2.1. Characteristics of emerging market innovation	49
3.2.2. Reverse diffusion of emerging market innovation	51
3.3. Challenges for Western MNCs	54
3.3.1. Chinese MNCs on the raise	54
3.3.2. Western business models neglect resource-constrained customers	55
3.3.3. Rigid R&D structures of Western MNCs	57
3.4. Summary and managerial shortcomings	59
4. Theoretical relevance: firm internationalization and the MNC	61
4.1. Theories of firm internationalization and innovation diffusion	62
4.1.1. International product life cycle	67
4.1.2. Foreign direct investments and eclectic theory	68
4.1.3. Lead market theory	69
4.1.4. Summary: underlying theoretical assumptions and limitations	70
4.2. Management of the MNC	72
4.2.1. MNC strategy and structure	73
4.2.2. MNC subsidiary management	75
4.2.3. Subsidiary initiatives and evolution within MNCs	78
4.2.4. Knowledge flows and knowledge creation in MNCs	78
4.2.5. Summary: underlying theoretical assumptions and limitations	82
4.3. Global R&D	88
4.3.1. Drivers of global R&D	88
4.3.2. Strategic roles of R&D sites	91
4.3.3. Organizational structures of global R&D	92
4.3.4. Moving R&D to emerging markets	95
4.3.5. Underlying assumptions of R&D management	97
4.4. New product development	99
4.4.1. Global new product development	99
4.4.2. New product development in emerging markets	100
4.4.3. Underlying assumptions of international NPD	101
4.5. Initial reference framework	102
5. Empirical findings on reverse innovation from Western medical equipment manufacturers	111
5.1. Medical equipment industry	111
5.2. In-depth case studies	113

5.2.1.	Case 1: General Electric Healthcare	113
5.2.2.	Case 2: Philips Healthcare	119
5.2.3.	Case 3: Siemens Healthcare	124
5.2.4.	Case 4: Draeger Medical GmbH	130
6.	Conceptualizing reverse innovation	137
6.1.	Revised reference framework	137
6.2.	Cross-case analysis	142
6.2.1.	Western MNC strategy	142
6.2.2.	Western MNC resources	145
6.2.3.	Local environment	146
6.2.4.	Organization of emerging market innovation activities	147
6.2.5.	Emerging market innovation activities	153
6.2.6.	Emerging market innovation – characteristics	155
6.2.7.	Reverse innovation initiative	158
6.2.8.	Control variables	159
6.2.9.	Summary and discussion of cross-case analysis results	161
6.3.	Concept of reverse innovation	165
7.	Theoretical implications	171
7.1.	Categorization and definition of reverse innovation	171
7.1.1.	Frugal innovation	171
7.1.2.	Reverse innovation	173
7.2.	Theory of innovation diffusion	174
7.3.	Management of the MNC	178
7.3.1.	Management of market and technological knowledge	178
7.3.2.	Market based center of excellence	179
7.3.3.	Location-bound firm specific advantages	180
7.3.4.	Subsidiary initiative and autonomy	181
7.3.5.	Decision-making structure and implementation of innovation	182
7.4.	Global R&D management	184
7.4.1.	New capabilities as a driver for global R&D	184
7.4.2.	Dual R&D structures	185
7.4.3.	Local NPD processes	186
8.	Managerial implications	187
8.1.	Threefold innovation process	187

8.1.1.	Strategic innovation	188
8.1.2.	Product innovation	191
8.1.3.	Business model innovation	193
8.2.	Implications on R&D management.....	196
8.2.1.	Understand the value architecture of frugal innovation.....	196
8.2.2.	Establish local R&D structures to enable frugal innovation.....	197
8.3.	Summary	198
9.	Conclusion.....	201
9.1.	Summary: theoretical implications	201
9.2.	Summary: managerial implications.....	206
9.3.	Limitations and future research.....	207
	References.....	211
	Appendix.....	233
	Curriculum Vitae.....	241