

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Motivation	1
1.2	Method	3
1.3	Contributions	3
1.4	Outline	4
2	Distance Education: The Landscape	5
2.1	Introduction	5
2.2	Videoconferencing	6
2.3	Lecture repositories	6
2.4	Web-based educational management systems	8
2.5	MOOCs	9
2.6	3-Dimensional Collaborative Virtual Environments	10
2.6.1	Commercial 3-D CVEs	10
2.6.2	Open source 3-D CVEs	11
2.7	Global university projects	11
2.8	Own work	12
2.8.1	The AI Lectures from Tokyo	12
2.8.2	The AI Days	14
2.9	Conclusions	15
3	Research Context: The ShanghAI Lectures	16
3.1	Origins	16
3.2	Goals and means	17
3.3	Pedagogical considerations	18
3.4	Technological foundation	19
3.4.1	Videoconferencing	20
	Protocol	20
	Connection types	21
	Bandwidth	23
	Number of concurrent sites	23
	Audio	24
	Testing	24
3.4.2	Screen sharing	24
3.4.3	Recording	26

3.4.4	Background communication	27
3.4.5	Community website	27
	Lecture repository	28
	Implementation	28
3.4.6	Collaborative Virtual Environment	29
	Technology	30
	UNIworld	31
3.4.7	Exercises	32
3.5	ShanghAI Lectures 2009: Establishing the basics	32
3.5.1	Videoconference	33
3.5.2	Screen sharing	33
3.5.3	Recording	34
3.5.4	Exercises in UNIworld	35
3.5.5	Conclusions	35
3.6	ShanghAI Lectures 2010: Focus on interactivity	36
3.6.1	Videoconference	36
3.6.2	Website	37
3.6.3	Exercises in UNIworld	37
3.6.4	Discussion Sessions	38
3.6.5	Recording	40
3.6.6	Conclusions	40
3.7	ShanghAI Lectures 2011: Focus on web community	40
3.7.1	Videoconference	41
3.7.2	Social media	42
3.7.3	Website	42
3.7.4	Exercises	43
3.7.5	Conclusions	43
3.8	ShanghAI Lectures 2012: Consolidation and refinement	44
3.8.1	Videoconference	44
3.8.2	Lectures	44
3.8.3	Recording	45
3.8.4	Website	45
3.8.5	Exercises and competitions	45
3.8.6	Conclusions	46
3.9	Outcome	46
3.9.1	Numbers	46
3.9.2	Personal assessment and limitations	47
4	Evaluation and results	49
4.1	Data collection	49
4.2	Overall concept	50
4.3	Organization and technology	50
4.4	Lectures via videoconference	52

4.5	Guest lectures and recordings	53
4.6	Website	54
4.7	UNIworld, exercises, and competition	55
4.8	International collaboration and community	57
4.9	The Global Virtual Lecture Hall from a community perspective	57
4.9.1	Community aspects in the survey	58
4.9.2	Community of faculty and staff	58
4.9.3	Community of students	60
4.9.4	Discussion	60
4.10	Conclusions	61
4.10.1	Success factors	61
4.10.2	Potential challenges	62
4.10.3	Additional recommendations	64
5	Conclusions and outlook: Towards the Global Virtual Lecture Hall	65
5.1	Increasing the audience	65
5.2	Intensifying interaction	66
A	The ShanghAI Lectures: Using Virtual Worlds for Intercultural Student Collaboration	69
B	The ShanghAI Lectures: Connecting Continents in Cyberspace	73
C	The ShanghAI Lectures: A Global Education Project on Artificial Intelligence	77
D	Setup Diagram	92
E	Participants	94
F	Respondents	99
G	Information for participating universities	102
H	Dates and times	106
I	Technical Overview	108
J	Technical Information for Guest Presenters	112
K	Design principles for the Global Virtual Lecture Hall	115
	Bibliography	119