

Table of Contents

0. INTRODUCTION. Political field and presidentiability at the front-stage of TV debates

0.1. Presidentiability

0.1.1. The rules of the political game

0.1.2. The management of presidentiability

0.2. Structure of the dissertation

1. THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK. From field structure to argumentative discourse

1.1. Introducing the theoretical framework

1.2. Defining political discourse

1.3. Multidisciplinarity

1.4. Parties as the main agents of institutional Politics

1.5. Politics as a zero-sum game

1.6. The logic of representation and the functioning of the field

1.7. Conceptual frame

1.7.1. Fields

1.7.2. Political field

1.7.3. Capital

1.7.4. Social capital and political capital

1.7.4.1. Social capital and votes

1.7.4.2. Political capital as symbolic capital

1.7.5. Observations

1.7.6. Self-presentation: Political capital, ethos, face

1.7.7. Ideology

1.7.8. Ideology and de/legitimation

1.7.9. Presidentiability and attributes of the presidentiable candidate

1.8. Summary

2. THE POLITICAL FIELD AS TERRAIN. Components of the Spanish political field

2.1. Introducing the Spanish political field

2.2. Spain's political and administrative structure

2.2.1. Division of powers

2.2.2. Territorial and administrative organization

2.2.3. Elections at the different levels of the Spanish administrative structure

2.2.3.1. State Parliament

2.2.3.2. Regional Parliaments

2.2.3.3. Provincial Parliament

2.2.3.4. Municipal Parliaments

2.2.4. Observations

2.3. The Spanish political party system

2.3.1. A brief overview of the system of Spanish political parties

2.3.1.1. National parties

2.3.1.2. Regional parties

2.3.2. The three main Spanish parties: PP, PSOE, IU

2.3.2.1. The recent history of Spain

2.3.2.2. History, ideology and figures of PP, PSOE, and IU

2.3.2.2.1. PP

- 2.3.2.2.2. PSOE
- 2.3.2.2.3. IU
- 2.3.2.3. Observations
- 2.4. Summary
- 3. DATA. Collection, treatment and organization
 - 3.1. Introduction
 - 3.2. Selection of material
 - 3.3. The reason for choosing the debates
 - 3.4. Multimodality and simplified transcription
 - 3.5. Organization of materials
 - 3.6. Data treatment
 - 3.7. Summary
- 4. ANALYTICAL FRAMEWORK. Interactional and discourse analytical approaches
 - 4.1. Introduction
 - 4.2. Interactional approaches
 - 4.2.1. The interactional construction of stances
 - 4.2.2. Participation frame: Turn taking, Participants, Interactional space
 - 4.2.3. Faces, faces in interaction and facework
 - 4.3. Discourse analytical approaches
 - 4.3.1. Metaphor
 - 4.3.2. Inferential meanings: presuppositions, entailments, implicatures
 - 4.3.3. Narratives
 - 4.3.4. Reported speech and quotations
 - 4.3.5. Deixis
 - 4.3.6. Argumenta, falacia, loci (or topoi)
 - 4.4. Summary
- 5. THE DEBATES AS A STAGE. A place for the construction of presidentiability
 - 5.1. Introducing the debates
 - 5.2. Presidential debates in Western democracies and as a field of inquiry
 - 5.3. Mediatization, personalization and polarization: debates as rituals of confrontation
 - 5.4. Spanish televised debates as a means of sanction for the two-party system
 - 5.5. Norms, organization and structure of 2008 Spanish debates
 - 5.6. The structure and the themes of the debates
 - 5.7. Debates as a stage for managing presidentiability
 - 5.8. Summary
- 6. FROM CLEAVAGES TO THEMES. Terrains for managing presidentiability
 - 6.1. Introduction: Cleavages and Themes
 - 6.2. Cleavages
 - 6.2.1. Definition of cleavages
 - 6.2.2. Old and new political cleavages and the 2008 election campaign
 - 6.3. Themes
 - 6.3.1. Difficulty of selecting themes from electoral discourses
 - 6.3.2. Treatment of themes by politicians
 - 6.3.3. How to select (relevant) themes

6.4. Themes and the construction of presidentiability

6.5. Summary

- 7. THE ECONOMY. Enriching or impoverishing laymen
 - 7.1. Introduction: the economy in Spanish politics
 - 7.2. The economy in the debates: Strategies, moves, devices
 - 7.2.1. RJ's moves to manage presidentiability
 - 7.2.1.1. Ability: PP as an effective administrator and PSOE as incapable
 - 7.2.1.2. Ability: ZP as passive
 - 7.2.1.3. Defense of people's interests: Proximity to or distance from people
 - 7.2.2. ZP's moves to manage presidentiability
 - 7.2.2.1. Un/supportiveness: PSOE supportive vs. PP unsupportive
 - 7.2.2.1. Fair play: PSOE fair player PP unfair player
 - 7.2.2.3. Sincerity and Ability: Good debater vs. bad debater
 - 7.2.2.4. PSOE dialogue PP authoritarian
 - 7.2.2.5. Selflessness: PP opportunistic vs. PSOE selfless
 - 7.2.2.5. Optimism vs. pessimism: PSOE optimistic and PP pessimistic
 - 7.2.3. A particular case: the first question RJ asked ZP in the Congreso
 - 7.3. Observations
- 8. IMMIGRATION. The rhetoric of coladero
 - 8.1. Immigration and Spain
 - 8.2. Immigration in the debates: Strategies, moves, and devices
 - 8.2.1. RJ's moves for managing presidentiability
 - 8.2.1.1. ZP as incapable
 - 8.2.1.2. RJ as capable
 - 8.2.1.3. Distancing ZP from citizens: ZP as indifferent, insensitive, unaware
 - 8.2.1.4. ZP far removed from reality
 - 8.2.1.5. Strength and strictness vs. weakness and laxity
 - 8.2.1.6. Sincerity and coherence: words and deeds
 - 8.2.1.7. Re-constructing supportiveness and defending Spaniards' interests
 - 8.2.1.8. Good debater bad debater: RJ as the Spaniards' spokesperson
 - 8.2.1.9. The EU as authority: ZP as being isolated in Europe
 - 8.2.2. ZP's moves to manage presidentiability
 - 8.2.2.1. Supportiveness
 - 8.2.2.2. Capability and Coherence
 - 8.2.2.3. Progressiveness
 - 8.2.2.4. Dialogue
 - 8.2.2.5. Immigrant integration
 - 8.2.2.6. Selflessness and sincerity
 - 8.2.3. A particular case: disputing xenophobia
 - 8.3. Observations
- 9. TERRORISM. The hero (PP), the villain (ETA) and its accomplice (ZP)
 - 9.1. The role of ETA in Spanish politics
 - 9.2. Terrorism in the debates: Strategies, moves, devices for managing presidentiability
 - 9.2.1. RJ's moves to manage presidentiability
 - 9.2.1.1. Ability: ZP as incapable

- 9.2.1.2. Unity: ZP as a divider and breaker of traditional consensus
- 9.2.1.3. Coherence and consistency: ZP as incoherent
- 9.2.1.4. Sincerity: ZP lies to Spaniards
- 9.2.1.5. Strength vs. weakness: Fighting against vs. negotiating with terrorists
- 9.2.1.6. ZP's contiguity with terrorists

9.2.2. ZP's moves to manage presidentialiability

- 9.2.2.1. Ability: PP antiterrorist politics less effective than PSOE
- 9.2.2.2. Opportunism vs. Selflessness
- 9.2.2.3. Unity: the quest for agreement

9.2.3. A particular case: 11M for Spain: a bad debater and fair play

9.3. Observations

10. THE CATALAN QUESTION. Patriot or non-patriot

10.1. The Catalan question from the 15th century to the present

10.1.1. The Estatut de Autonomia de Catalunya

10.1.2. Unity of Spain for PSOE and PP

10.2. The Unity of Spain in the debate: strategies, moves, devices

10.2.1. RJ's moves to manage presidentialiability

- 10.2.1.1. Ability: ZP as incapable
- 10.2.1.2. Unity: ZP as a divider
- 10.2.1.3. Sincerity: ZP as a liar or as removed from reality
- 10.2.1.4. ZP as ignorant and unserious, inexperienced and irresponsible
- 10.2.1.5. ZP as isolated and radical
- 10.2.1.6. ZP as antidemocratic and incoherent
- 10.2.1.7. The idea of Spain: ZP as not sharing the notion of a (united) Spain
- 10.2.1.8. Patriotism vs. Anti-patriotism: ZP as a threat to the unity of Spain

10.2.2. ZP's moves to manage presidentialiability

- 10.2.2.1. Unity: PP as a divider
- 10.2.2.2. PP as authoritarian vs. PSOE as open to dialogue and progressive
- 10.2.2.3. PP as incoherent and opportunistic
- 10.2.2.4. Optimism vs. pessimism
- 10.2.2.5. PSOE, the defender of joy and freedoms vs. PP a threat to freedom
- 10.2.2.6. Unity

10.2.3. A particular case: the Castilian language in Catalonia

10.3. Observations

11. CONCLUSIONS. Presidentialiability, the field, and the ideological convergence

11.1. Introducing the conclusions

11.2. The main values invoked through the attribute of the presidentialiable

11.3. The main devices employed for constructing presidentialiability

11.4. The discourse produced: hybridization and ideological convergence

11.5. Contribution to the academic field, limitations and further developments

References

Appendixes

Appendix I. Transcription of the First Debate

Appendix I. Transcription of the Second Debate

- Appendix II. Transcription of the electoral videos of IU
- Appendix II. Transcription of the electoral videos of PP
- Appendix II. Transcription of the electoral videos of PSOE
- Appendix II. Transcription of the two main electoral songs
- Appendix III. Glossary of the main Spanish parties