CONTENTS

1 Introduction—Getting Modern: Depicting Premodern Power and Sexuality in Popular Media 1
Janice North, Elena Woodacre, and Karl C. Alvestad

Part I  Reappraising Female Rulers in the Light of Modern Feminism(s) 21

2 Early Modern Queens on Screen: Victors, Victims, Villains, Virgins, and Viragoes 27
Elena Woodacre

3 Silencing Queens: The Dominated Discourse of Historical Queens in Film 51
April Harper

4 Feminism, Fiction, and the Empress Matilda 69
Katherine Weikert

5 ‘She Is My Eleanor’: The Character of Isabella of Angoulême on Film—A Medieval Queen in Modern Media 91
Carey Fleiner
6 Women’s Weapons in The White Queen
Misty Urban

111

7 ‘Men Go to Battle, Women Wage War’: Gender Politics in The White Queen and Its Fandom
Kavita Mudan Finn

131

Part II Questions of Adaptation: Bringing Premodern Queens to the Page and Screen

153

8 Religious Medievalisms in RTVE’s Isabel
Emily S. Beck

159

9 ‘The Queen of Time’: Isabel I in The Ministry of Time (2015) and The Queen of Spain (2016)
Emily C. Francomano

179

10 From Mad Love to Mad Lust: The Dangers of Female Desire in Twenty-First Century Representations of Juana I of Castile in Film and Television
Janice North

195

Séverine Genieys-Kirk

215

12 Thomas Imbach’s Marian Biopic: Postmodern Period Drama or Old-Fashioned Psychogram?
Armel Dubois-Nayt

239
Part III  Undermining Authority: Rulers with Conflicted Gender and Sexual Identities  257

13  Queering Isabella: The ‘She-Wolf of France’ in Film and Television  263
Michael R. Evans

14  Seeing Him for What He Was: Reimagining King Olaf II Haraldsson in Post-War Popular Culture  283
Karl C. Alvestad

15  Televising Boabdil, Last Muslim King of Granada  303
Elizabeth Drayson

Aidan Norrie

Séverine Genieys-Kirk

Index  341