

Contents

1	Introduction: Terrorism as a Threat to Open Societies.	1
1.1	Constructing Threats: Crime, Organized Crime, and Terrorism	2
1.2	Bottomless Barrels and Moving Targets: The Need for Proper Risk Management.	4
1.3	‘Agency of Things’: Putting the ‘Critical’ into Critical Infrastructure Protection	7
1.4	Predicting Terrorism of the Future – A Caveat	11
1.5	The Road Ahead: Overview.	13
 Part I Barbarians at the Gates: ‘Sinful’ Cities
2	Actions: The Return of Urban Guerrillas.	21
2.1	Propaganda by the Deed in Action: Terrorists’ Weapons and Tactics	22
2.2	Cities as Targets: Mumbai, Paris and Brussels	28
2.3	Urban Guerrillas: Marighella Revisited.	31
2.4	Beyond Marighella: Modern Urban Guerrilla Warfare	34
3	Reactions: The New (Para-) Military Urbanism	39
3.1	Cities Under Threat: Protecting our Open Societies	41
3.2	How to Respond: The Criminal Justice Model and the War Model.	48
3.3	The New (Para-) Military Urbanism: Lessons from Ben Tre, Grozny and Fallujah.	50
3.4	The Law: Liberal Democracies and the Limits of Response.	55
4	Consequences: The Urban Space as a (Limited) Battlespace	57
4.1	Terrorist Actions.	57
4.2	Counter-Terrorist Reactions.	58
4.3	Academic Reactions.	59
4.4	Looking for a Silver Bullet	61

Part II Our Technology Will Win – The Role of Technology in Urban Counter-Terrorism

5	Identification: Biometrics, or a Real-Time ‘Who Is Who’	67
5.1	Facial Recognition and Iris-Scans: The Proverbial ‘Eyes of the Beholder’	69
5.2	Fingerprints: Tented Arches, Plain Arches and the Central Pocket Loop	72
5.3	From Voice to Gait: Other Forms of Biometrics	74
5.4	Towards Multimodal-Based Biometric Systems: Evaluation	78
6	Prediction and Postdiction: Real-Time Data Mining and Data Analytics	81
6.1	‘Inspector Computer’: Computerized Databases as Invaluable Tools for the Police	82
6.2	Digital Footprints, Big Data and Data-Mining: The Current Situation.	85
6.3	Anti-Terrorism Data-Mining and Acquisition: The (Current) Cutting Edge of Policing.	90
6.4	Evaluation: Data-Mining and Civil Liberties.	97
7	Detection: Scanning and ‘Sniffing’ Technologies	101
7.1	Metal Scanners: About Portals and Wands	102
7.2	Full-Body Scanners: ‘Looking Good Naked’ in a Different Context	104
7.3	Explosives Detection Systems: Looking for Homemade Explosives	107
7.4	Sniffers: Tell-Tales of (Impending) Disaster	109
8	Surveillance and Observation: The All-Seeing Eyes of Big Brother	115
8.1	CCTV: Visions of Orwell’s 1984	116
8.2	Smart CCTV: Detecting More than What Meets the Eyes	118
8.3	Augmented Reality: Towards Minority Report -Style Policing	123
8.4	Smart Security: The (Near) Future.	127
9	Protection: Defensible Spaces	131
9.1	City Walls: The Re-Emergence of an Age-Old Concept	133
9.2	Citadels: Hardening Key Assets Against Terrorist Attacks	136
9.3	More Citadels: Hardening Residential Communities	139
9.4	Barricades: Hardening the Cityscape.	141
10	Threat Displacement Instead of Threat Eradication: Some Concluding Caveats	143

Part III Brave New Cities: The Law of Unintended Consequences

11 The Quest for Silver Bullets: Implications for Our Construction of Citizenship . . . . .	149
11.1 The ‘Agency of Things’ and the ‘Internet of Things’: Reprise . . . .	150
11.2 Exclusionary vs. Inclusionary, Liberalism vs. Security: Some Comments on Citizenship . . . . .	151
11.3 Kant or Mill: Universalism versus Utilitarianism . . . . .	153
12 Archipelagos of Fear: CT Technology and the Securitisation of Everyday Life . . . . .	157
12.1 Barricades and Citadels Revisited: The Changing Nature of Public Spaces. . . . .	158
12.2 Security as a ‘Culture of the Absurd’: Bubble Laws, Protected Zones, and Totally Protected Zones. . . . .	161
12.3 ‘There Be Lions’: From ‘Architectures of Fear’ to ‘Archipelagos of Fear’ . . . . .	163
13 Undemocratic Means: The Rise of the Surveillance State . . . . .	169
13.1 ‘Dragonfly Eyes’ or ‘Keeping Trust is Glorious’: The ‘Brave New World’, Chinese Version. . . . .	170
13.2 The Gamification of Social Control: Towards ‘Funopticon’ . . . . .	173
13.3 ‘Total Information Awareness’ and ‘Undemocratic Means’: Western Liberal Democracies and the Lure of Social Control . . . .	175
14 Democracy Transfigured: The Dawn of the ‘Umpire State’ . . . . .	181
14.1 Big Brothers Are Watching You: Going Beyond Orwell . . . . .	182
14.2 The Return of the Oligarchy: Private Companies Evolving into (Quasi) Nation-States . . . . .	185
14.3 Black Swans and Other Spoilers: Some Food for Thought . . . . .	187
15 Outlook: The Need for ‘Critical’ Critical Infrastructure Protection Studies . . . . .	191
15.1 ‘Feigning Control Over the Uncontrollable’: Conventional CIP. . . . .	192
15.2 Ricocheting Silver Bullets: Arguments for a Critical CIP . . . . .	193
15.3 ‘Muscle-Bound Experts in Coordinated Terrorism’: An Avoidable Future? . . . . .	195
General Bibliography . . . . .	199
Index . . . . .	215